

Amanda,

I have no other way to say this but when you make me happy, I have a lot of fun of miserable hard times with my life right now and I all I can think of about / bringing those times is how much I wanna be with you and how much I love you. You're the only person that loves me and you care for me the way that you do. You're the only one who will listen and support me. Everyone else try but doesn't know what they're doing to my mental stability. They don't care, but you do. I wanna be with you forever but I don't know how long forever is. I want it to be long but with the mental problems my family is making worse, I'm afraid I might kill myself or kill someone else. I don't want to but during traumatic times my family creates, I don't think right during them, so I just
